

Birga Alden

Birga Alden brings people together to build practical solutions for those often left out of the conversation. Her background spans executive leadership in a local nonprofit, collaboration with private foundations, and more than a decade in radio and television communications. She continues to write for several online forums and holds a BA in Journalism & Mass Communication from the University of New Mexico.

As Chief Communications Officer for the New Mexico Dream Center, Birga leads efforts to strengthen public awareness, partnerships, and advocacy around issues of human trafficking, youth homelessness, and exploitation. She works to elevate survivor voices and build strategic collaborations with agencies and organizations serving marginalized populations across New Mexico.