Lisa McCulloch spent twenty-four years as a fundraiser and small business owner, with a passion for cultivating an inspiring and ambitious team culture leading to dramatic and effective results. She was instrumental in completing the capital campaign, as the Director of Advancement, to renovate the historic post office and courthouse at 4th and Gold in downtown Albuquerque to become the home of Amy Biehl High School. While serving as the Executive Director at the CNM Foundation, she worked with the then College President and Foundation Board of Directors to triple the size of the endowment, leading to greater scholarship opportunities, and was directly responsible for bringing in the largest single grant and largest private donation (at the time). Lisa also served two consecutive terms as the President of the local chapter of the Association of Fundraising Professionals.
