

Nyra Klawer

Nyra Klawer is a development and external relations professional recognized for her imaginative approach, collaborative energy, persistence, and ability to bring fresh perspectives to complex challenges. A natural problem-solver and trusted thought partner, she's known for building meaningful relationships, advancing mission-driven work, and aligning strategic initiatives with financial goals to ensure long-term organizational strength and growth. Nyra is recognized for developing strategies that not only deepen engagement but also drive measurable fundraising, community impact, and ultimately advocacy.

Curiosity shapes her life as much as her work. Nyra loves studying the natural world, and she has a soft spot for collecting seashells, pinecones, and old-world ephemera—small treasures that spark creativity and fuel her enduring fascination with travel, culture, and history.

Whether she's collaborating with community partners, shaping compelling narratives, or championing opportunities for learners of all ages, Nyra believes that the best approach is centered on warmth, purpose, and a genuine love of connecting people to possibilities.
